"GOODBYE" HIGH COST OF LIVING

Will Eliminate Middleman and Deliver Farm Products Direct

PLANS ARE ANNOUNCED

By Company Which Will Undertake the Project and Which Includes Catering to 10,000 Families in the Beginning.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Washington, May 26.—A sharp cut in the high cost of living through the elimination of the middleman and the direct delivery of farm products to the consumer is the aim of the American Salt company in which many prominent people are said to be interested, among them Gifford Pinchot, former chief forester, and P. V. Degraw, former assistant postmaster general.

The "company" today applied to the commissioners of the district for space in the money market in which to receive and disburse wares to its stockholders.

The plan as announced is to cater to 10,000 families in the beginning who will be sold vegetables and other products at a price slightly above cost. The customers will be supplied through 300 of the best housekeepers in selected localities, who in return for their services in this particular will receive their food supplies free and in addition be paid a nominal salary each week. The "company" feels that with the nomination of the middleman and the comparatively low cost of reaching the consumers, it will be enabled to pay the producer better prices than he could otherwise secure. It is proposed to inaugurate the plan in the middle of June.

TO HELP REDUCE COST OF LIVING

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Boston, Mass., May 26.—In an attempt to reduce the high cost of living, Mayor John F. Fitzgerald has a plan to ask all coastwise steamers and United States naval vessels to report by wireless as soon as a school of mackerel is sighted. The mayor believes that by sending radio messages to the master of fishing schooners, the exact location of schools would greatly aid the fishermen and the public. He thinks the system would be adopted not only in New England waters but all along the Atlantic coast.

Eye Witness to Drowning of Rosa Szabo Testifies In Gibson Murder Trial

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Newburgh, N. Y., May 26.—When the trial of Burton W. Gibson, for the murder of Rosa Szabo, was resumed in the supreme court this morning, John Minturn of Greenwood Lake, the only eye witness of the fatality, was subjected to a close cross-examination. On Minturn and the medical experts the prosecution base its case.

Minturn said he watched the boat containing Gibson and Mrs. Szabo at a distance of three-eighths of a mile. It appeared to him that Gibson seized

RETURN OF THE SILK WORKERS DID NOT MATERIALIZE

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Paterson, N. J., May 26.—There was no general break in the ranks of the striking silk mill workers today as had been predicted. At some of the mills employees slipped back in small groups, but the wholesale return manufacturers had said would come did not materialize.

At one mill there was a clash between pickets and a squad of employees who sought to get inside. Thirty-two arrests were made. Among the prisoners were fifteen women. Eight of them denied that they were pickets and asserted that they were school girls loitering to see a scrimmage.

REUNION WEEK OF SOUTHERN VETERANS

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Chattanooga, Tenn., May 26.—Chattanooga today was the mustering place for thousands of southern civil war veterans who came for their twenty-third annual reunion, which will be begun tomorrow. With the veterans were hundreds of guests and members of all organizations who were expected to bring Chattanooga's total of visitors up to 150,000 during reunion week.

BURGLARS GET WEDDING GIFTS AT HEISEY HOME

Loot which included many valuable wedding presents besides three dresses of the trousseau of Mrs. Clarence Heisey was carried away Sunday night by burglars who forced an entrance to the Heisey home, 520 Hudson avenue, between the hours of 8 and 9 o'clock. The burglars used two unit suit cases stolen from the home, in which to lug away the booty.

The crime was discovered about 8:45 o'clock when Mr. and Mrs. Heisey returned home after spending the evening at the home of Mrs. Heisey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Davis. Before entering the house they drove up to the garage in the rear of the home to put their car away for the night. It is presumed that the noise of the car alarmed the burglars and the time consumed in running the car into the garage was sufficient to allow them to make good their escape.

When they drove up to the house, they noticed that lights were burning in several of the rooms. Little was thought of this, though it was unusual.

When they attempted to enter the house, it was found that the doors had been tampered with and they found it difficult to open them. It was evident that the burglars had attempted to force the locks or throw the bolt with skeleton keys.

When entrance was finally effected they found the rooms in a topsyturvy condition. The burglars had cleaned out one drawer of the sideboard in the dining room. In the rooms on the floor above, the drawers were removed from dressers and their contents scattered about the bed rooms.

A hurry call was sent to police headquarters and Wagonman George McClure made a fast trip to the Heisey home in the patrol wagon. An

DYNAMITE TRIAL IS RESUMED

Prosecutor Endeavors to Show Manufacturer's Connection With Conspiracy

VOUCHERS PRESENTED

Showing Payment to Alleged Conspirator Which Were Approved by Pres. Wood—The Defense Shows Hand First Time.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Boston, May 26.—Further evidence intended to show the connection of President William M. Wood of the American Woolen company with the alleged conspiracy to "plant" dynamite in Lawrence to discredit textile strikers during the industrial troubles of 1912, was introduced by the prosecution at today's session trial of Mr. Wood, Frederick E. Atteaux and Dennis J. Collins.

Checks and vouchers, showing payments to Mr. Atteaux by the American Woolen company with Mr. Wood's approval, have been presented and District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier endeavored to establish a relation between these payments and the alleged conspiracy.

The three defendants are charged with having conspired with John J. Breen and Ernest W. Pittman to place the dynamite. Collins and Breen have admitted their participation, Breen declaring that Atteaux paid for the work and that Pittman, who committed suicide with the beginning of the grand jury investigation, furnished the explosives.

Corroboration of Breen's story of Pittman's part in the affair was furnished by William H. Rice, a quarryman, but Breen's charges against Atteaux remained unsupported when the trial resumed. Wm. H. Dwyer, director of the American Woolen company, principal witness at Friday's session, was put on the stand today by the district attorney.

Dwyer said that both the executive committee and the board of directors of the American Woolen company should defray the expenses of President Wood's defense, but no payment on that account had yet been made.

Vouchers bearing Mr. Woods' approval and indicating other payments on March 22, 1912, on account of the strike were introduced. One showed that William M. Butler, former president of the state senate and a well known lawyer and textile manufacturer received $19,110, and Bowers and Hall, the law firm of which ex-Congressman Samuel L. Powers, one of Mr. Wood's counsel, is a member, received $10,905.

The defense showed its hand for the first time today when it got into the records evidence that Frederick E. Atteaux, the recipient of American Woolen company's checks was legitimately employed by the company and was not as the state alleged, a conspirator with President William M. Wood and Dennis J. Collins in "planting" dynamite at Lawrence during the textile strike.

Cross-examined by counsel for Wood, Treasurer Wm. H. Dwyer, Jr., of the Woolen company, who on Friday testified to checks given to Atteaux in consideration of "expenses incurred relative to the strike," testified that Atteaux acted as messenger between Wood and various agents of the company on perfectly proper matters. Dwyer further testified that Atteaux did not wish to receive the reimbursement, but it was forced upon him by Wood, although he had expressed a wish not to be under obligation to the manufacturer.

District Attorney Pelletier repeatedly objected to this testimony but was overruled. When he got a chance he asked the witness why his memory of the relations between Wood and Atteaux were so much better today than last Friday. Dwyer replied that he would have told the whole story under direct examination if he had not been interrupted by the prosecutor.

AIRSHIP TO WAR AGAINST BATTLESHIP

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Nogales, Ariz., May 26.—Aviator Didier Masson and his war aeroplane arrived here today at the front above Guayamas and will begin operations at once against the gunboat Guerrero lying in Guayamas harbor, says a report reaching here. Simultaneously the insurgent troops will move against the gulf port town. It is said by state officials.

TRANSPORTATION FOR REFUGEES BY RED CROSS

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Washington, May 26.—The American Red Cross today authorized American Consul Miller at Tampico, Mexico, to draw $2,000 for the maintenance and transportation of American refugees to Galveston. Today's reports to the state department say conditions around Tampico have become intolerable for foreigners. Many American farmers have fled from their holdings and others are unable to do so because of their destitution.

THREE DEAD IN EXPLOSION; TWO INJURED

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Marietta, O., May 26.—Mrs. Kathryn Marshall, a negro, and her two children, Raymond, aged 17, and Helen, aged 4, are dead and Stella and Priscilla Marshall have burns that probably will result in their death, as a result of an explosion of kerosene at the Marshall home near Little Hocking, in this county, early today. The victims were trapped in their beds by the flames which destroyed their home. Two other members of the family were rescued.

ROOSEVELT ARRIVES AT MARQUETTE

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Marquette, Mich., May 26.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, accompanied by a company of friends, witnesses and newspaper men, arrived here this morning. His suit for $10,000 damages, charging libel against George A. Newett, publisher of the Ishpeming Iron Ore, is scheduled to begin this afternoon with the selection of a jury.

Three straw hats enlivened the scene when Col. Roosevelt and his party stepped from the train. A touch of winter still lingers here and the appearance of the straw hats brought a round of applause.

Accompanying Col. Roosevelt were Robert Bacon, former assistant secretary of state, Truman H. Newberry, former secretary of the navy; Gifford Pinchot, James R. Garfield, Richard H. Post, former governor of Porto Rico; Dr. Alexander Lambert, Jacob A. Riis, Dr. Rixey, former surgeon general of the navy; Lawrence Abbott, W. Emmet Roosevelt, and his son Philip; Avn. Loelt, Jr.; Gilson Gardner, L. A. Curtis, O. H. Davis, Frank Tyree, John Callan O'Loughlin and James Sloan. All of these are to be witnesses. Sloan and Tyree are secret service men who accompanied Colonel Roosevelt on many of his campaign tours.

The forenoon proceedings in court occupied less than a minute.

"Roosevelt versus Newett," read the clerk from the calendar.

"The plaintiff is ready," said Attorney W. S. Hill.

"The defense is ready," repeated Attorney W. P. Holden.

George Planigan then announced that the case would begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Meanwhile Colonel Roosevelt, Jas R. Garfield, O. K. Davis, Attorney Pound and others of the plaintiff party were invited to the home of George Shiras, whose guest Colonel Roosevelt is.

ZBYSKO'S INJURY SLIGHT

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Montreal, May 26.—The injuries which Stanislaus Zbyszko sustained in a wrestling match Saturday night with Constant Lemarin are inconsequential and consist only of a slight erosion, in stead of a serious fracture of the skull, according to a bulletin issued by Zbyszko's doctors today.

President of China Said to be Prisoner

The new president of China is declared by the London Daily Telegraph's Peking correspondent to be virtually a prisoner within the city. Although he commands 150,000 troops, and foreign opinion wrongly believes him to be master of the situation, Yuan Shi Kai is virtually a prisoner in the Forbidden City, not daring to move owing to terrorist threats. He must now realize that China must be governed constitutionally. Unless he does so he will sign his own death warrant.

CONFESSED TO BURNING THE STORE

Clothing Merchants in Ft. Wayne, Ind., Pleaded Guilty Today

AFTER "ARSON TRUST"

And Prosecutor Accepted Pleas on Condition That Prisoners Render Assistance "Torch" of the "Trust" to Testify.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Ft. Wayne, Ind., May 26.—David and Benjamin Rosenberg pleaded guilty when they were brought to trial today on charges of arson growing out of the burning of their store in this city. The pleas were accepted by the prosecutor on condition that the brothers give all possible assistance in the prosecution of the so-called arson trust which has been operated throughout the central west.

Another chapter in the so-called "arson trust" in the central west was started here today, when David and Benjamin Rosenberg pleaded guilty when they were brought to trial before Judge Eggegan in the circuit court charged with arson. The men are alleged to have had their clothing store here set on fire that they might collect illegal insurance money on the stock.

The three were indicted by the Allen county grand jury and the two Rosenbergs have been in jail several months awaiting trial. Franklin is out on bail.

Chas. A. Dolph, James Walsh and Daniel Sandison, all of South Bend, are expected to testify regarding conversations they heard between David Rosenberg and Franklin in South Bend, the former of the three accused. The two are alleged to have been quarreling and Franklin said: "Well, you have no kick coming, didn't I divide the insurance money with you?"

Franklin is said by the officials to have confessed at one time and then repudiated it. He was taken to South Bend to testify against Ben Kahn, who recently was convicted of arson there and sentenced but was released on bail pending his appeal to the state supreme court, but refused to go on the stand. The Rosenbergs also testified against Kahn.

Ben Fink, the confessed "torch" of the "trust" is said to have admitted that he set fire to the Fort Wayne store owned by the Rosenbergs and Franklin, and that Franklin paid him for the job. He is to be one of the states witnesses here.

HONOR SYSTEM FOR COLLEGE MEN AT OLD HARVARD

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Cambridge, Mass., May 26.—The honor system has been introduced at soda fountains which cater to Harvard students. The college men, who consume an average of over 5,000 ice cream sodas and sundaes a day during the hot months, are being trusted to leave the correct amount for drinks consumed in a little cash receptacle on the soda fountain counter. It is an open box and if it is necessary for a customer to make change he does it himself. The proprietor reports that business has increased under the new system.

MRS. PANKHURST'S LIBERTY PROVES OF SHORT LIFE

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) London, May 26.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, militant suffragette leader, released from Holloway jail April 12, owing to the serious condition of her health arising from a "hunger strike" was re-arrested today.

The house of commons passed a new law this year known as the "mouse and cat" bill, permitting the prison authorities to release suffragettes from the results of "hunger strikes," and at the end of a short period to re-arrest them without warrant and make them serve the remainder of their original sentence.

BUGGY STRUCK BY CAR

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Ellyria, O., May 26.—Richard Gibson, 28, is dead and Peter Smith eighteen, will die, as a result of the buggy in which they were riding being struck by a Cleveland, Southwestern and Columbus interurban car two miles east of here last night. There is a curve at this point, and it is supposed the men did not note the approach of the train.

FROM WINDOW OF THE TELLER $1000 IS TAKEN

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Toledo, O., May 26.—With a bent umbrella rib, a man giving his name as James Evans, of Chicago, robbed the Northern National bank at noon today, of two rolls of bills, each containing $500. The money was abstracted from the teller's window.

Pursued by bank attaches, Evans ran into the arms of a policeman as he was attempting to mingle with the noon day crowds. Besides the two rolls of bills the police found $213 in his possession.

Would Prohibit the Administration of Friedmann Serum

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) New York, May 26.—Dr. Joseph J. O'Connell, health officer of the port of New York, sent a letter today to Health Commissioner Lederle requesting him to submit to the board of health at its next meeting a resolution prohibiting the administration of the Friedmann treatment for tuberculosis in New York "until such time as those interested affirmatively in its administration shall satisfy the health department of its innocuous character."

FIND CHARRED BODY IN RUINS OF CABIN HOME

Investigating the source of a blaze which illumined the sky late Sunday night, searchers found the charred body of Jacob Wise, 85, in the ruins of his home near Pleasant Valley, between Newark and Zanesville.

Wise, who had lived alone in his cabin, evidently was asleep when caught by the flames and awakened too late to make his escape from the building. The origin of the fire probably will remain a mystery.

THIS JOB HANGS ON INTERPRETATION OF SINGLE WORD

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Columbus, May 26.—The answer of Secretary of State Graves to the suit filed in Supreme Court by D. C. Brower, of Dayton, to compel him to appoint Brower a member of the Montgomery county election board, was filed today. The chief question involved resolves itself into an interpretation of the word "qualify."

The secretary contends that this implies moral and business qualification and that if he does not deem a candidate meeting all these requirements that it is within his right to decline to appoint him. Brower claims to have the endorsement of a majority of the county committee, Attorney General Hogan has prepared the answer.

Chief Sheridan Will Clamp on Lid and Has Issued Strict Orders

The lid is to be clamped on saloons, gambling and street walking so tightly it creaks, according to the statement of a policy given out Monday afternoon by Police Chief Sheridan. The determined chief emphasized his words when he said: "The mayor's platform, adopted when he entered office, is going to be observed."

"That means that tonight every man on the force will be instructed to enforce midnight closing of saloons, too. That means closing businesses, too. Saloons will be closed on Sunday."

"The men will be instructed to stop all forms of gambling or make arrests promptly."

"For the different officers on their beats at night there is to be a strict order concerning attention to girls and boys under 17 being on the streets after 9 o'clock at night. This street walking and street loafing business is going to be cut out."

"Public dance halls and pool rooms are coming in for their share of attention in this respect. Girls under age will be taken out of public dance halls, and boys under 18 will be kept out of pool rooms or arrested. There'll be no drinking and hanging around in saloons, so far as boys under 21 are concerned."

"I also have some orders for the men on the force about drinking. There is to be no drinking at all while on duty, and any man of the force found drinking or under the influence of intoxicants, in uniform, will be dealt with at once."

"By Jove, these are orders and they've got to be obeyed," concluded the chief.

Peters of the board of trustees of the university, in Cincinnati, the resignation to become effective at the close of this school year.

It is reported that President Hunt has been offered the presidency of the Rochester Theological Seminary, the secretaryship of the American Baptist Foreign Missionary society, and also the pastorate of a large Brooklyn church and a large church

WARRANTS SERVED AT CALGARY

For Promoters of the McCarty-Pelkey Prize Fight

AIG ARENA BURNS DOWN

And Authorities are Investigating Believing That It May Have Been Caused by Incendiaries.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Calgary, Alta., May 26.—Warrants were issued early today for the arrest of Tommy Burns, who staged last Saturday's prize fight in which Luther McCarty met his death; Wm. McCarty, McCarty's manager; Referee Ed. Smith and several trainers and attendants.

This development followed an order from the Attorney General at Edmonton, Alta., that all principals in the arrangements for the fight be arrested, and the Northwest Mounted police were instructed to execute the order immediately. It is understood that the men arrested will be charged with complicity in manslaughter.

Arthur Pelkey, McCarty's opponent who was arrested on a charge of manslaughter, was given a preliminary hearing in police court at 11 o'clock this morning but owing to the declaration last night of the physicians who conducted the autopsy that McCarty's death resulted from dislocation of the neck and not heart failure, as had first been announced, it is anticipated that the hearing will be adjourned awaiting the results of the coroner's inquest which will be held at four o'clock this afternoon.

Dr. Mosher, who conducted the autopsy will lay his findings before Coroner Costello's jury and it is expected that that body will reach an early decision.

The origin of the fire that late last night destroyed the Burns arena where Saturday's fight was held has not been discovered, but authorities are extending every effort to ascertain whether it was caused by incendiaries.

Denison athletes were "within the money" in the big six track meet at Columbus Saturday when Ohio colleges contested in the various track and field sports. The Granville boys captured two firsts and two thirds. Dunlap and Prouty were the first place winners, leading in the 880-yard run and in the discus event. In the 120-yard hurdles and the broad jump, Heinrichs and Ladd finished third.

These places gave Denison a total of fourteen points and placed the college in sixth place in the day's events. The showing made by Coach Livingston's men was a big surprise to officials and followers of the track and field sports. It was figured that Denison was not a dangerous factor, but in the four events the athletes from Granville worked nicely and deserved even better than the third place secured in the two events.

NAPS GET TWO FOR PECKINPAUGH

(Associated Press Telegram)
New York, May 26.—Hire trade by which Shortstop Peckinpaugh comes from the Cleveland club to the New York Americans in exchange for infielder Stump and outfielder Lelievre is expected by Manager Chance to plug the long existing gap at short in the Yankees' infield. Derick, Stump and McKechnie have been tried successfully, but not one has solved the shortstop problem.

In Peckinpaugh the Yankees have obtained a player with a fielding record of .921 in 63 games with Cleveland last year, only four of the regulars in this position topping him. His batting average was .210. The Cleveland club will be the fourth club in the American league in which Lelievre has seen service. He started with the Philadelphia Athletics, then went to Washington from which city he was sent to Rochester.

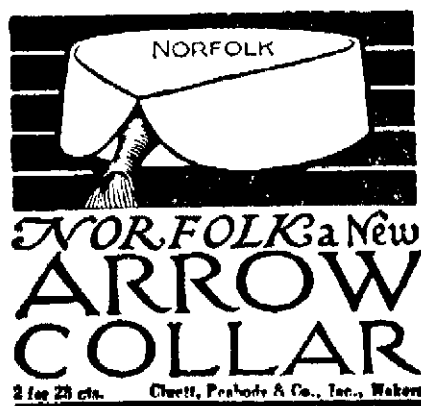

SEMINARY LASS MAKES A RECORD

Washington, May 26.—Miss Mary Francis Glass, a student at National Park Seminary at Forest Glen, Md., just outside the District of Columbia, established a world's record, it was announced today when in the seminary held meet she won a first and second in the events in which she entered. The record formerly was held by a British girl. The local record was made when Miss Lella Budd threw a baseball 116 feet, six inches. Miss Glass' victories were scored in the high jump in which she won first place with a mark of three feet, ten and one-half inches in the 60-yard high hurdle, which were negotiated in one ten and two-fifth seconds and in the hop, skip and jump which she won easily. She took second place in the running broad jump.

HAS ACCEPTED AGENCY FOR THE HAYNES MACHINE

W. M. Shamp, the well known real estate dealer and one of the quadrennial tax appraisers, has taken the agency for the Haynes automobile in this city. Six machines have been ordered, three six-cylinders, 50-horse power for Dr. J. T. Lewis, Hon. James R. Fitzgibbon and Frank J. Fitzgibbon of the American Bottle plant, and three four-cylinder 35-horse power for C. L. V. Holtz, Daniel Altschul and Mr. Shamp.

The Haynes company is a pioneer in the auto business and the first Haynes car ever built was exhibited at the Smithsonian Institute at Washington it made its initial trip July 4, 1893. A team was hitched to the car, and it was hauled six miles into the country. This was done for the purpose of secrecy, its builders being afraid that it might not operate successfully and they did not wish to suffer humiliation at the hands of a large crowd which would have assembled in the city of Kokomo where the machine was built.

Arriving in the country the car was prepared and the chauffeur took his seat. Turning on the power it started and he ran it several miles, coming back to the starting point the seats were filled with a half dozen people and the car was run back to Kokomo on its own power and entered the city in triumph. Immediately thereafter the manufacture of the Haynes cars began and they have been made continuously ever since, the output at the present time being 2,500 per year.

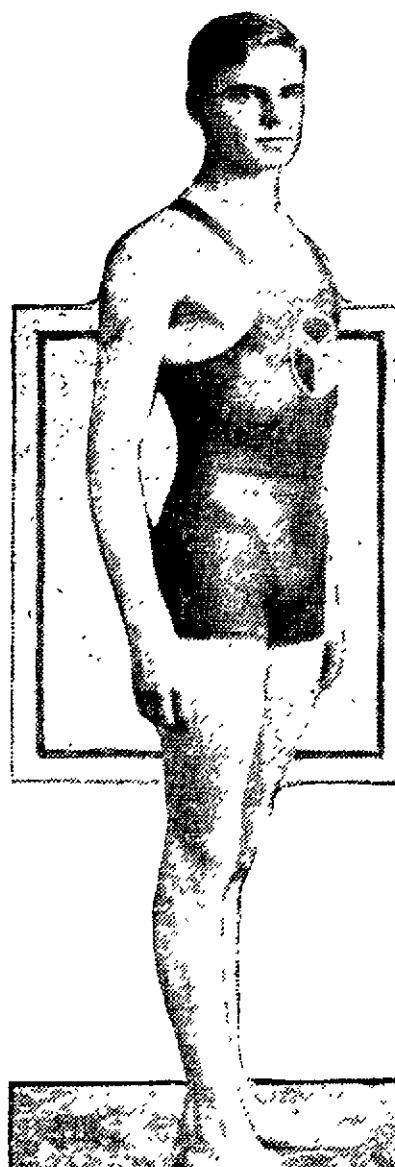

Col. Teddy Roosevelt owns and operates three Haynes cars. One of them is the famous six-cylinder 50-horse power self-starter.

COBURN PLAYERS ON THE CAMPUS AT DENISON

The Coburn players appeared in Granville on Saturday evening and as had been planned the entertainment was given on the campus of Denison University. The campus was converted into a natural stage and Percy Mackaye's poetical play, "The Canterbury Pilgrims" was given. About thirty characters participated in the production and the incidental music was furnished by a large chorus, in which many of the students of the school took part.

The originality and uniqueness of the production drew a large attendance, and the entire entertainment was most enjoyable.

Boy Swimmer Will Be Tested in Carnival

One of the most conspicuous figures of the big international water carnival to be held in Chicago late in June will be A. C. Rathel, of the Illinois Athletic club.

This 18-year-old swimmer equalled a week ago the world's 100-yard record of 54.4 seconds established by C. M. Daniels in 1909, and he has been pronounced by experts the best performer of all-around swimming material ever discovered in this country. His team-mates expect him to break every national standard in the near future, and the coming events will afford him the first opportunity to show what he can do in open water at the middle distances.

Rathel uses the crawl in swimming, but over courses longer than the 100 yard he favors a new type of tread-ging, showing several of the characteristics of the old side stroke. William Bedient, his coach, believes it will enable him to get all rivals when he has become thoroughly familiar with it.

Nobody has ever lived who has been fast enough to catch up with tomorrow.

To be born lucky is really to have been born with a little common sense.

TODAY'S RECORD OF THE PUGILISTS

1887—Kid McCoy defeated Dick the articles of confederation, the Con-ton.

1909—Ad Wolgast defeated Jeff O'Connell in 8 rounds at Fond du Lac. 1909—Willie Lewis knocked out Andy Jephtha in 2nd round at London.

1909—Johnny Thompson and Ray Branson fought 6-round draw at Columbus.

1911—Kid Williams defeated Charley Goldman in 15 rounds at Baltimore.

HUGH BEDIENT

The Boston Red Sox seem to be having a hard time getting in their last season's stride, so far they have occupied a rather low position for the World's Champions. This seems to be due to the failure of their old batters and some of their pitchers.

Hugh Bedient, who was newcomer last season and who was also one of the stars in the championship games, is expected to win more games this year than last, although his record was good last year with 20 won and 10 games lost.

AMUSEMENTS

Homer's "Odyssey" at Auditorium Tomorrow.

By long odds the greatest feature moving picture ever seen in this city is Homer's "Odyssey," the $200,000 production to be presented at the Auditorium tomorrow afternoon and evening. The story of this wonderful feature picture is known to almost every one and it should prove a great drawing card among scholars and teachers. Ulysses was the king of Ithica. While he was but lately married to Penelope, and while his only son, Telemachus was still an infant, the Trojan war began. The object of this war was to win back Helen, the wife of Menelaus, from Paris, the son of Priam, King of Troy. As Menelaus was the brother of Agamemnon, the emperor or recognized chief of the petty kingdom of Greece, the whole force of these kingdoms was at his disposal. When Troy was taken, in the tenth year of the war, the homeward voyage of Ulysses was long and perilous. "Odyssey" will be shown at the Auditorium tomorrow from 1 to 5:30, and from 6:30 to 11 p. m., with an admission fee of 5c for children and 10c for adults. This is the first time this picture has ever been shown under 50c prices.

Strong Program at the Auditorium This Week.

The Auditorium offers a splendid program of Photoplays this week. Tonight "The Poverty of Riches" and "A Wise Judge" will be the head-liners. Tomorrow brings "A Woman Lover" and "The Squashville Ladies' Bazaar" in addition to that wonderful feature, Homer's "Odyssey," which will be offered for the first time in Newark. Wednesday, "The Toll of War," which shows the Assassination and death of President Lincoln. Thursday, "The Key," will be seen. Friday (Decoration Day) "A Cry from the Dumb," and Steve's Girl" will be shown in addition to a big war drama just released. Saturday "A Fair Exchange" will be presented and next Sunday will witness another war drama entitled "In the Secret Service."

Quite easy now to extract any kind of a corn—just apply Putnam's Corn Extractor. It works wonders, stops the pain quickly, the thick tissue is softened, and healing goes right to the heart of the corn. In a few hours the hard corn is loosened and separated from the toe. Out comes the corn. The toe is left smooth, not a mark left. Use only Putnam's Pointless Corn Extractor, recommended by druggists and sold in 25c bottles by W. A. Herman.

What Is The Best Protection Against Burglars?

Electric Light

If more people used electric porch lights, there would be less robberies—a burglar always selects the dark house—if you haven't an electric porch light get one—if you have one burn it more—leave it lighted when you leave your house

WAKE UP AND DESTROY THE FLY

When the little pests begin to swarm about our doors so thick that no amount of shooting will drive them away, when a good dinner is spoiled for us by the sight of a fly in the gravy, then we will begin to buy fly traps and paper and poison and spend hours of each day swatting them and scolding the children for leaving the door open, and we'll keep right on in the same old way until frost comes. We have done it for years, and we can go on doing it for years to come, and a thousand years from now there will be just as many flies to swat as there are now unless we change our methods.

When we were children we were taught that the fly was a harmless little creature, "nature's scavenger," and therefore a friend to man. Even then we looked upon him with aversion when we found him swimming in our milk. But now that we know his scavenging consists in collecting filth and disease germs in our outhouses and depositing them on our food every man's hand is against him. Science has pronounced the death sentence upon him, and the only reason that his execution is delayed is because there are so many of him.

This new way is the way of prevention. Stables and refuse piles, outhouses and garbage cans are points of attack in the fly campaigns. By making the breeding places inhospitably clean and sanitary more can be accomplished in a day than in a season of swatting the fly after it has once come into existence.

JULIAN HOME IS ENTERED BY BURGLARS

The home of W. N. Julian, 572 Hudson avenue, was entered by burglars Saturday night about 8 o'clock and besides numerous small articles, the thieves took a revolver belonging to Mr. Julian and a watch, the property of his wife.

Entrance was gained when the burglars broke a glass in the rear door and unlocked the door by turning the key on the inside.

It is believed that they were frightened away by a neighbor who came home about that time. His footsteps on the walk near the Julian home probably alarmed the intruders and they left.

Mr. and Mrs. Julian were absent from the home at the time and discovered the crime when they returned home about 8 o'clock.

The watch stolen was in a gold case with Mrs. Julian's maiden name, Florence Brandt, engraved on the inside of the case. The movement was of the Elgin make.

An investigation was made by the police department but no clue was left by the burglars.

WOMEN WERE BADLY HURT IN RUNAWAY NEAR ALEXANDRIA

Two women and a child were badly hurt when a wagon upset just east of Alexandria Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. J. P. Floyd, Mrs. William Browning and little Pauline Pitts, age 4 years, daughter of Arthur Pitts, had been making a call at the home of Mrs. Mary Barnes in the eastern part of Alexandria on Saturday afternoon about 2 o'clock. They were driving a horse hitched to a light wagon and had started on their way home. In going around a sharp turn in the road the wagon was upset, and the occupants thrown out. In falling, the women were caught under the wagon and dragged for a distance up the road.

Passersby came to their assistance and they were taken to their homes. An examination showed that Mrs. Browning had sustained a broken collar bone, Mrs. Floyd was bruised about the face and the child required fifteen stitches to close. She also received a deep gash above the left ear.

the charges without the support of these witnesses.

His statement is as follows:

"I tendered my resignation to Mayor Swartz because I felt that my appointment was not satisfactory to the whole party. Information has reached me that there was a certain amount of dissatisfaction among certain other city officials and it was not my desire to in any way embarrass the administration."

"While I was at the head of the department I endeavored to carry out the wishes of the mayor and the safety director and without the cooperation of the entire department this was at times difficult."

"When I became chief, my first discovery was that there was much dissension, jealousy and ill feeling among certain members of the force. I was unable to overcome this trouble and it continued, growing worse all the time, until I grew tired of the entire mess. It was impossible for me to accomplish anything which would look good to the public. I came to the conclusion that it was best for all parties concerned for me to step down and out."

"There are other members of the department who are not above criticism and really should face a challenge and the commission and I made an effort Sunday to secure the aid of witnesses who could substantiate what ever charges I might make. They refused point-blank to become mixed up in the trouble and I dropped any plans I might have had to lay bare some information that might have proved interesting."

Mr. Blizzard stated that he had decided not to accept a position with Mr. Collier, rumors of which were circulated Saturday on the streets here. "I have a better proposition here at home and I think I will remain in Newark," he said.

According to the present plans, the hearing of the charges preferred against Patrolman Burke, will be heard Thursday afternoon.

The charges will not be heard before the civil service commission as was stated Saturday. Mr. Collier will sit in hearing. It is believed that he will find against the officer and dismiss him from the service. The matter will then be appealed to the civil service commission.

It is understood from a reliable source that Mr. Collier will resign soon after the Burke case is disposed of. He intimated that he would do so when he announced a week ago that The Pan-American Coal company, of which he is manager, had taken over six other concerns. At that time he stated that after June 1, his offices would be at Columbia, and when asked if that would cause him to relinquish his position a safety director, he merely said "this has not been decided upon."

BURGLARS

examination of the house and premises was made but aside from determining the fact that a rear window had been forced open with a "jimmy" no clue was uncovered.

Included in the loot was practically all the flat silver, most of which was a present to Mrs. Heisey on the occasion of her marriage last fall. Besides the silver, the burglars took three of Mrs. Heisey's dresses which were included in her trousseau.

Mr. Heisey stated Monday afternoon that he hadn't any idea of the value of the stuff taken. "They took practically everything we had, of any value, including clothing. I haven't any idea how many pieces of silver they got. We haven't tried to think of anything about that part of it."

The burglars were evidently interrupted in their work for they left on the sideboard, a solid silver tray with a number of silver articles on it.

While Mr. Heisey would not place any value on the property stolen, it is known that it amounts to from $300 to $500.

"STARVE THE FLY" IS FIGHTERS' SLOGAN.

Chairman Edward Hatch, Jr. of the American Civic association said during a convention in Baltimore, "The slogan 'starve the fly' should be changed to 'starve the fly'."

Mr. Hatch is right. Adults and children may alike be banded in a crusade to kill as many flies as have the temerity to show themselves. But unless the breeding and feeding places of the insect that forgets to wipe its feet are broken up the campaign will be in vain—at least it will fall far short of success.

The thing is a simple factor in the arithmetic of science and health. If there are no places for flies to feed, there will be no flies to kill. The new remedy has the virtue of getting right down to cases. The "swat" formula is only a palliative.

The new warfare is an important one in that it touches the fundamentals of sanitation everywhere. England is almost a flyless country. And England gained that enviable reputation not so much by swatting the fly as by taking the fly's meal ticket away from him and at the same issuing a close order against the places in which it is wont to breed.

There is no good reason why any enterprising town, county or state, jealous of its health, should not follow a similar course. It sounds spectacular to tell how many flies you have slaughtered during the course of a day. It is pleasant to have their scalps dangling, so to speak, at your belt. But unless you have nullified its means of sustenance and broken up its homestead rights the few you have killed will be re-enforced by millions of others just as deadly and just as aggressive.

BRAVEST ACT IN BATTLE.

General Wilder Tells of the Conduct of an Indiana Soldier While Dying.

"The bravest acts in war often go unnoticed. In battle all men go to their duty are brave. But down at Hoovers gap, beyond Chattanooga, I witnessed an act which I regard as the bravest which ever came within my observation."

General John T. Wilder of Knoxville was speaking to a number of Indiana veterans who were looking upon the stalwart form of the volunteer brigade commander with admiration.

"It was at Hoovers gap," reiterated the general, "and my old regiment, the Seventeenth Indiana, was fighting with the then modern weapons—Spencer rifles. One could fire about eight shots with these where the old rifle, which most of the soldiers were armed with, would fire hardly more than one shot. That made it possible for my brigade to beat Longstreet back when he loomed up through the woods and struck us at Chickamauga on the second day and to do it with comparatively small loss. Those rifles had a screw used in the mechanism, without which the rifle was valueless."

"This soldier of the Seventeenth Indiana regiment had been mortally wounded. Although in death agonies, he deliberately took the screw from his rifle and threw it away where no Confederate could find it. Then he drew his revolver and discharged it at the enemy, falling back lifeless as soon as the shots were speeding toward the enemy."

On the famous field at Chickamauga one of the most impressive of the numerous monuments is to General Wilder's brigade of Indiana and Illinois regiments.

Obituary

MISS MARY FERGUSON.

Miss Mary Ferguson, age 95, died at the home of her niece Mrs. W. V. Jordan in West Locust street on Sunday morning at 9:15 o'clock. Miss Ferguson has made her home with Mrs. Jordan for the past eleven years, coming to Newark from New Lexington. Death resulted from a decline incident to old age.

The deceased was born in Ireland. She has been a faithful member of the Roman Catholic church and was a woman of many lovable characteristics. In Newark three nieces survive her, Mrs. Jordan, Mrs. Mattingly and Miss Rose Dolan.

The body will be taken to Junction City on Tuesday morning, leaving Newark at 8:15 and funeral services will be held at St. Patrick's church. Burial will be made there. The pallbearers were the grand-nephews of the deceased.

DEATH OF INFANT.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Myers of Brusy Fork, died Sunday after a brief illness. The funeral service was held in the home Monday afternoon, and interment was made in Brusy Fork cemetery.

FUNERAL OF C. H. GRAHAM.

The funeral service over the remains of Charles H. Graham, well known Newark citizen, whose death occurred Saturday morning in his home, 91 Western avenue, was conducted Monday afternoon by Rev. L. C. Sparks, pastor of the First Methodist church, of which the deceased was a member. Interment was made in Cedar Hill cemetery.

The service was held in the home and was largely attended, while flowers in abundance paid tribute to the memory of Mr. Graham, whose sorrowing family found sympathy from the large assembly attending the obsequies. Knights of the Macabees, of which Mr. Graham was a member, were well represented, and members of the order served as pallbearers.

An ounce of prevention is not only worth a pound of cure, but it costs less.

What is the area and population of Japan?

Were the inaugural invitations made out in the name of Thomas Woodrow Wilson? If so, is that the president's correct name?

A firm of Philadelphia stationers printed the invitations "Thomas Woodrow Wilson," but when Mr. Wilson made it known that he refused to drop his baptismal name, which he adopted some years ago, even to save the firm the cost of reprinting the invitations, they were reprinted "Woodrow Wilson."

What is the method by which the amortization of a bond or debt is determined?

Amortization amounts to no more than an installment loan. The term of the debt having been determined by mutual agreement and the number of payment periods, which may be annual, in larger business concerns semi-annual, and particularly in suburban real estate traffic, monthly. The amount of each payment is readily determinable by the common arithmetical rule of partial payments. The basic principle is that the sum of all the payments shall produce at the end of the term such amount as the creditor would receive by a lump payment at the end of the term with accrued interest. The advantage to the debtor is that his installments are readily within his means and that with each payment he is decreasing the burden of interest charges.

WILSON SCENTS TARIFF LOBBY'S EARLY ACTIVITY

(Associated Press Telegram.)

Washington, May 26.—President Wilson told the White House correspondents today that he believed the most extraordinary lobby ever gathered by special interests to overcome legislation was now mustered at the capital against the tariff bill.

While the President believes that the "lobby" opposition is concentrated against free sugar and free wool he is not apprehensive that it will be successful.

The President made it clear that he believed scientific business methods and efficiency would overcome tariff cuts and that with the application of scientific methods Louisiana would not only be able to continue in the sugar industry but do so profitably.

President Wilson hopes this week to give definite expression to his views on currency reform. He plans to have a number of conferences with currency advocates in and out of congress and feels confident that a bill would be completed by the end of the week. He will express his views in a special message which probably will be sent to congress next week.

Frank Samuels of Philadelphia told the sub-committee, presided over by Senator Stone, that at present prices for ferro-manganese ore, the fifteen per cent duty in the Underwood bill would be nearly 300 per cent higher than the present tariff rates. He urged reduction.

Shoe manufacturers protested before Senator Johnston's sub-committee against the "free shoe" provision. J. F. McElwain of Boston, declared English shoes were made at a labor cost of 24 cents per pair less than American shoes.

Stanley King of Boston, urged that if the senate left boots and shoes on the free list it should take the duty off all material entering into their production.

FARMERS MUST PAY UNCLE SAMUEL FOR RECLAIMING LAND

THE DIARY OF DEATH.

By ADRIENNE CODY, aged sixteen, of Central park school, Topeka.

I am a fly. I'm not very old and am just learning where to find the best things to eat. My favorite places are in the spittoon in the sitting room and the uncovered garbage can on the back porch. Of course some flies would be bothered about having to go out of doors to get to that can. But it doesn't worry me. In the house where I live there aren't any screens, so I can fly from the garbage can to the spittoon in perfect safety. I often stop on the way, though, to get in the sugar bowl or crawl over any eatables that are handy.

There's a baby in this house who annoys me very much. Every time I leave the spittoon and crawl into that baby's mouth it cries and splits me out. Of course I leave a few tuberculosis germs in its mouth, but it doesn't seem like that would hurt the baby.

It seems to me like people don't know what is good to eat. At least the people in this house don't. Why, they throw away all the good things. They put them in the garbage pail. I am endeavoring to show them what good things are, however, for I get my feet all sticky in the garbage can and then go and wipe them on the bread. About a hundred of my companions are doing the same thing. I really believe that the people are beginning to like it, for they never trouble us any more. We wipe our feet on the bread in peace and quiet.

I heard the woman across the way say that she believed flies had something to do with the man in this house having consumption. I wonder if he got it from the bread.

The woman across the way is losing all her flies. They're all coming over to our house. She won't give them anything to eat. She covers up her garbage pail, has tight screens on all her doors and is a terror to flies in general. Her children are such happy, hearty youngsters, while the children in this house are always cross. They never get any afternoon nap. The flies won't let them.

There's a very great deal of illness in this house. Two of the boys have malaria and the father is never well. I heard the mother say to the woman across the way: "I really do not know what to do for all this sickness. It drives me distracted." What do you think that woman said? Why, "Swat the fly," of course, at which I ducked. Oh, yes! The baby has the typhoid.

THE POISONER.

A human fiend who would enter our stores and markets by night and, after gorging himself, leave poison in all the remaining food, to spread suffering, disease and death throughout the community, would be executed, pursued and torn to pieces by an outraged populace. Yet a useless insect, playing its role to perfection, is living among us constantly and is regarded merely as a mild source of annoyance, often as a subject of jest.

And He Was a Booster.

(By Chalmers L. Pancoast.)

He would rather be a booster than king. Rather be a pusher than have "his hat in the ring." A mighty good fellow round town; for a factory or anything good his name went down. He'd give five, ten or twenty, just as though he had plenty. He wasn't like the stingy old cuss, who when asked for a dime made an awful fuss. He did all he could for the town. He allowed no knocker to "kick his dog around." And just because his good work and generosity was so rare—People said he wasn't on the square. But for knocks he didn't care. He just let them tear their hair and swear. For he knew Knoekin' was a sin, and they would pay well, when they "cashed in." HE WAS A BOOSTER FOR HIS OWN HOME TOWN.

THE LIFE OF A FLY

By GLADYS E. NORTON, aged eleven, of State street school, Topeka.

"Won't you come into my parlor?" says the spider to the fly. "No," says the fly to the spider; "I will bring you all kinds of diseases, such as typhoid fever and tuberculosis." "Well, I'll take the risk," says the spider. "No," says the fly to the spider; "I won't come in, but if you will listen I will tell you my history, and then I am sure you'll not want me," replied the fly.

"Well, my mother told me this much. She said I came out of a little egg laid with many others in a manure pile. When I was hatched I didn't have any legs or wings and was called a maggot by our worst enemies, men. I stayed in that form for five days. Then I had a thick brown coat and went into a sleeping stage which was called a pupa. When I shed that I was like I am now, a full fledged fly.

"You have often wondered why I did not get in your web or get caught by you. Did you know I had many eyes that are put together to make one? With these I can see on all sides, and so I am very hard to catch.

"My worst enemies are you and your family, some beetles and a little red-dish mite.

"I always lay my eggs in manure or other filth. The people are screening it and burning it and burying it. They try to kill us by carbolic acid and sticky fly paper, where so many of my friends have ended their days.

"People have some stuff, too, that they put in water and put in their bedrooms. They call it formalin, but I keep away from it, as it is sure death.

"The worst trouble I have is where the people screen their houses and keep their yards clean so we can't get anything to eat.

"Our worst danger is not the carbolic acid or fly paper and such things, though, for after we are once hatched they can never kill us all off, but if they start out to destroy our breeding places—the manure pile and other filth—we will soon be gone from the earth. I hope you will never find that out, but I fear they will some day."

THE WINGED PERIL

The deadly peril to life and health wrought by the housefly and the stable fly has never before been so fully understood as now, and the experience of Cleveland in her notable anti-fly campaign, initiated and conducted by Dr. Jean Dawson, enforces this lesson—that the work must start at or before the opening of spring because they breed so rapidly; hence there is now no time to lose, and hence the strenuousness with which you should urge immediate action.—W. H. Hale.

WOODROW WILSON and the SHORT BALLOT

III. How the Public Has Been Converted to Short Ballot

Woodrow Wilson

As Woodrow Wilson had hinted at the Short Ballot banquet, the campaign for this new reform was to be conducted on original lines. Inasmuch as it dealt with the fundamentals of democracy, it must find its own way to fulfillment through the people, instead of being "handed" to them. For this reason, the Short Ballot Organization did not begin to lobby at the State capitals or to seek political support in any quarter, although in later stages of the campaign it became necessary for local organizations to do this. The headquarters in New York has been engaged from the start in preaching the gospel and trusting mostly to Providence that sensible people in every State, city and county will find the necessary means to get the principle enacted into law. The great and busy public is usually introduced to the movement with the simple declaration that:—

"The Short Ballot principle is:—

"First—That only those offices should be elective which are important enough to attract (and deserve) public examination."

"Second—That very few offices should be filled by election at one time, so as to permit adequate and unconfused public examination of the candidates, and so as to facilitate the free and intelligent making of original tickets by any voter for himself unaided by political specialists."

No complicated "checks and balances," no clever mechanisms. Just a very few, but absolutely direct points of contact between the voter and his public servants, without any patent attachment—that, declared Woodrow Wilson, in a speech in Philadelphia, in support of the movement, "is the key to the whole question of the restoration of government by the people." Elaborating somewhat, he said:—"The salient principles of the Short Ballot system are first, a governing body as small as is consistent with efficiency; second, a full administrative responsibility lodged in that body; third, the election of that body by voters who are given only one, or at most two, persons to select for candidates and to vote for as officers." In January, 1910, he published a complete exposition of the whole theme in a magazine article which he called "Hide and Seek Politics," in the course of which he declared:—

"The Short Ballot is the open way by which we can return to representative government. It has turned out that the methods of organization which lead to efficiency in government are also the methods which give the people control. The busy owners are more effectually in control if he appoints a capable superintendent and holds him responsible for the conduct of the business than he would be if he undertook himself to choose all the subordinate agents and workmen and superintend both them and the superintendent; and the business is also better conducted—incomparably better conducted. What the voters of the country are now attempting is not only impossible, but also undesirable if we desire good government. Such a charter as that of the city of New York, for example, is a mere system of obscurity and of inefficiency. It disperses responsibility, multiplies elective offices beyond all reason of necessity, and makes both of the government itself and of its control by the voters a game of hide-and-seek in a labyrinth. Nothing could have been devised better suited to the uses of the professional politician, nothing susceptible of being more perfectly articulated with the nominating machine. As a means of popular government, it is not worth the bother and expense of an election."

Swiftly, the truth of these doctrines has been impressing itself upon the thinking people of the country. All but a mere handful of the editors of the larger city newspapers have come out readily for the principle; some of them revert to it again and again. Colleges and universities and high schools, over sixty in number, have made it a special subject of instruction in their class rooms.

Two years slipped by from the launching of this idea. In the spring of 1912 the Short Ballot was head over heels in politics. This was partly due to Colonel Roosevelt, who put his influence behind it in his address before the Ohio constitutional convention. In the fall of last year it was endorsed in fourteen State platforms—in Ohio and Illinois by all three leading parties. In 1913 eleven Governors urged its adoption in their States.

(The next two articles will show how Mr. Wilson used and extended the Short Ballot in New Jersey.)

Wisdom from Washington

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, May 26.—[Special.]—Before the parcel post system is in complete and satisfactory operation quite a number of changes in the postal service will be necessary. It has already been demonstrated that more cars, more wagons, more employees and better terminal facilities will be necessary to make it a success. And then there will be other adjustments.

It is possible that the parcel post will eliminate or at least cause a reorganization of that famous bureau of history and fiction, the dead letter office. As parcels go astray to a greater extent than letters and the cost of transporting them long distances to Washington is considerable, it is probable that half a dozen or more dead letter offices will be established, so that parcels may be sent to the nearest places without coming all the way to Washington. The old dead letter office may be absorbed in the general parcel post scheme.

Congressional Sacrifices.

These are days when congressmen are making sacrifices. At least those who had two good committee places or one good place and a chairmanship are sacrificing. The "new fellows" took care of that and put through the caucus a resolution limiting the activities of members on the first dozen good committees to just one place each.

Among those who have had to surrender either a good chairmanship or a committee assignment are: Adair, Indiana; Bathrick, Ohio; Beall, Texas; Bell, Georgia; Booher, Missouri; Broussard, Louisiana; Candler, Mississippi; Carlin, Virginia; Carter, Oklahoma; Cline, Indiana; Dent, Alabama; Finley, South Carolina; Glass, Virginia; Goldfogle, New York; Graham, Illinois; Hamill, Missouri; Hedlin, Alabama; Hensley, Missouri; Holston, Alabama; Houston, Tennessee; Humphreys, Mississippi; Jacobway, Arkansas; Korbly, Indiana; Lee, Pennsylvania; Lloyd, Missouri; Moss, Indiana; Oldfield, Arkansas; Richardson, Alabama; Rucker, Missouri; Rouse, Kentucky; Slayden, Texas; Smith, Texas; Talbott, Maryland; and Watkins, Louisiana.

Will Bryan Be a Candidate?

Very frequently the question is asked, Is Bryan a candidate for the 1916 nomination? The probabilities are that the question should be answered in the affirmative. Bryan wrote the one term plank into the Baltimore platform, and he no doubt expects that President Wilson will not seek another term. Bryan will have the backing of the peace organizations and should have the anti-liquor support, as he has Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Brave Boy Color Bearer Of Gettysburg.

The Color Bearer Pressed Forward.

MEMORIAL day was at hand. Jack and Evelyn understood what it meant, for grandfather always took them out to the cemetery and showed them the graves on which little flags were fluttering and told them stories of the blue and the gray.

"Can't you tell us a soldier story, daddy?" the children asked. Daddy nodded; he was thinking.

"Fifty years ago was fought the great battle of Gettysburg," he began. "Gettysburg is a little town in the state of Pennsylvania. It lies just over the border from Maryland. In the old days fifty years ago, when north and south were fighting one another, General Lee, who was in command of the southern, or Confederate, army, wished to send his soldiers to Harrisburg, the capital of Pennsylvania, to fight the northern, or Union, soldiers there. The Union army, however, met them, and a battle was fought at Gettysburg. The battle lasted for three days, when the southern army was defeated.

"Among the soldiers in the Union army on the day when the fighting began was a young boy, a color bearer. It was his duty to carry the flag, and very proud he was of his post. When the fighting became fast and furious he pushed his way to the front of the line facing the Confederates.

"The little color bearer knew that if the men of his army saw him, a boy bravely facing the guns of the enemy, they would be ashamed to fall back.

"But it happened that in that part of the field there were many more Confederate troops than Union ones, and the boy saw his comrades falling around him by scores as the guns of the enemy roared and whistled.

"It was the hope of the little color bearer that the regiments whose general he knew was hurrying to their aid would reach them before the enemy drove them back. At last, as he saw how few of his companions still lived and were able to fight, the boy stepped out beyond the front of the line and carried his flag farther forward. But the Union soldiers knew that they had lost that part of the field and began to fall back in spite of his example. Carried away by grief, the little color bearer turned to wave his flag defiantly and shake his clinched fist at the enemy. All day the shot had been whistling around him. Sometimes it clipped his flag staff, but it had not touched him. But as he turned to follow his retreating comrades a shot from the enemy's lines killed him. He fell dead still clutching his beloved stars and stripes.

"But he is not forgotten. In the great cemetery that the nation keeps for the brave dead who fell at Gettysburg you will see the white marble figure of a boy holding a flag in his hand and with clinched fist upraised."

made his greatest efforts for peace and for temperance since he became secretary of state, even at the risk of criticism.

They Call on Bryan.

It is surprising how many callers Mr. Bryan has day after day. Men looking for appointments seek his influence, and many others who are not expecting anything to see him when in Washington. One of his friends, seeing how much time the secretary was giving to callers, protested against his use of time in that manner.

"In the various campaigns I have made," replied Bryan, "and in the lectures I have delivered I have visited nearly every spot in the United States. Nearly everybody has seen me, and some have become acquainted with me during these years. Now, when I have come into a position of prominence, the least I can do is to see these people and shake hands with them." And he sees everybody who calls.

Those senators who may be in doubt about what they will do when the final vote is taken on the tariff bill will have time to make up their minds. A loud voice is a good asset anywhere or any time. Olie James not only made good in the house, but also in national conventions, where his voice could always be heard. His first speech in the senate showed that a good speaking voice gets attention there as well as elsewhere.

The Human Procession

An extraordinary and unique character is Sir Walter Strickland, the "anarchist baronet," who was recently reported as missing from his accustomed haunts, but was later discovered in Cordova, Spain, where he said he had fled to escape the English government. Sir Walter, who is the ninth of his line, and whose title dates from 1611, was born sixty-two years ago today, and succeeded his father some four years since. A scholar and savant of wide repute, he is also called a gypsy and an anarchist, owing to his wandering habits and political theories. He was still a young man when the wanderlust seized him, and since then he has traveled all over the globe, studying flora and fauna of the countries he visited, and nearly always getting into hot water with their governments. He has written many books and pamphlets violently attacking religion, the state, and the established order generally. He is a linguist of ability, versed in both ancient and modern languages, and won wide fame by his translations of Moliere and Horace. It is said that during his sixty-two years he has spent only a week in London.

Sir Walter declared that he had hidden himself in Spain because he had received a warning "from an absolutely reliable source" that powerful officials were plotting his assassination. In Vienna the Baronet was arrested because it was thought to be a great compliment. "This was visited," for Schenck was described as extremely handsome and aristocratic looking.

Upon succeeding to the title, Sir Walter announced his intention of removing every scrap of property to the continent, and for the future to have as little as possible to do with England and its people.

In a recent letter to a London newspaper Sir Walter wrote: "The vulgar, ungentlemanly and indeed, murderous persecution to which I have been subjected is exclusively British."

The "anarchist baronet" comes of an ancient family that had its seat at Strickland in Westmoreland before the Conquest, and one of Sir Walter's ancestors carried the banner of St. George at Agincourt. The Strickland who was the first baronet was a member of the bogus House of Lords during the great rebellion.

Robert William Chambers, the greatest living American novelist, in this statement is made on the authority of Elmer Glyn, who fairly dotes on "Bob"—will pass his forty-eighth birthday today. Mr. Chambers was born in Brooklyn and was an artist, and exhibited at the French Salon, before he took up the novel-writing trade. His first novel, "In the Quarter," was published twenty years ago, and has been followed by some thirty others, all highly successful from the financial viewpoint. Indeed, Mr. Chambers is said to have something like a million dollars safely invested, and every cent of it was derived from his something—awfully naughty and shocking—is just—about-to—happen—but—never—does brand of fiction.

Dr. Robert Mearns Yerkes, the distinguished Harvard psychologist, will celebrate his thirty-seventh birthday today. He has lately been conducting elaborate experiments with angleworms, and has discovered that they have a capacity for suffering pain and also possess the faculty of remembrance. The theory, long held by anglers, that worms do not suffer when placed on a hook, is denied by Dr. Yerkes.

GENERAL BAKER ORATOR DIES AT MINNESOTA HOME

General Baker, who was distinguished as an orator and an author of historical works, had served as secretary of state of Ohio, and also of Minnesota, formerly surveyor general of Minnesota, and at one time United States commissioner of pensions. He was colonel of the Tenth Minnesota volunteers in the civil war, and a delegate to the first Republican National convention.

Nine of the workmen were killed and four others badly injured. The injured men were brought to the hospital here. The laborers, all said to be Italians, were running from a blast and at the same time dodging a west bound freight when the passenger train dashed around a curve upon them.

Colonel J. L. Clem, Civil War Veteran, In Active Service

MEMORIAL DAY, 1913, sees but one Union officer who fought during the rebellion now on the active list of the United States army. That one is Colonel John L. Clem, famous during the civil war as the "Drummer Boy of Chickamauga." Colonel Clem obtained the unique position he now holds among veterans with the retirement of Major Daniel W. Arnold nearly a year ago. Colonel Clem served as musician of Company C, Twenty-second Michigan Infantry, from May 1, 1863, to Sept. 10, 1864. He entered the regular army as a second lieutenant of the Twenty-fourth infantry in December, 1871. He is a native of Ohio, born on Aug. 13, 1831. He still has more than two years to serve on the active list.

The colonel was seized by the war fever before he had finished his tenth year. He begged to go to the front as a drummer boy with a regiment passing through his native town of Newark, O. On account of his youth he was rejected, but he was determined and followed the troops to Cincinnati, where he offered himself to the Twenty-second Michigan regiment, only to be declined again. But he persevered and was allowed to accompany the regiment in its subsequent movements till he found himself at Shiloh with Grant.

On this field his drum was smashed by a piece of shell. But it was at Chickamauga that he won the sobriquet of the "Drummer Boy of Chickamauga." In the summer of 1863 he had been allowed to exchange his drum for a musket, shortened especially for his use, for in his own words he did not like to stand and be shot at without being able to shoot back.

He blazed away like a veteran. At the close of the day, when the army was falling back on Chattanooga, his brigade was surrounded, and a demand was made for its surrender. Johnny did not fall back as quickly as the rest, and a Confederate colonel, having summoned him to surrender, came forward with drawn sword and used language that the little soldier resented.

The boy raised his musket, shot the colonel and then fell as though shot himself. Here he lay till dark, when he managed to rejoin his comrades. His exploit, being recorded in the papers, gave his family the first knowledge of his whereabouts.

For his gallantry General Rosecrans made Clem a sergeant and attached him to the Army of the Cumberland. After being captured and exchanged he was attached to the staff of General Thomas, whose firm friend he remained until Thomas' death. He fought at Shiloh, Perryville, Resaca, Kenesaw, Peach Tree Creek, Atlanta and Nashville. Since the war he has had various posts and was in the Philippines for some time.

There is an interesting story told of the way Colonel Clem got into the regular army. In the early days of General Grant's first term as president Clem, without aid, gained an audience.

"What can I do for you?" asked the president.

"Mr. President," said Clem, "I wish to ask you for an order admitting me to West Point."

"But why," said the president, "do you not take the examinations?"

"I did, Mr. President, but I failed to pass."

"That was unfortunate," said the president. "How was that?"

"Why, Mr. President, you see I was in the war, and while I was there these other boys of my age were in school."

"What," exclaimed the president, "you were in the war?"

"Yes, Mr. President," said Clem, who was now scarcely eighteen; "I was in the war four years."

Then he related his experiences, after which the president wrote a note and told him to take it to the secretary of war. Clem thought it was an order to admit him to West Point, but instead it directed the secretary of war to make him a second lieutenant in the regular army.

CANCER STUDY AT HARVARD.

A Special Investigation of the Effect of Radium to Be Made.

Cambridge, Mass.—The effect of radium in the treatment of cancer is to be made the subject of a special investigation under the direction of Dr. William Druane at the Harvard medical school.

For the present the experiments will be conducted in the Collis P. Huntington building, but as soon as possible a special building is to be constructed adjoining the medical school and devoted entirely to the work of radium investigation.

Dr. Druane has studied in the laboratory of Mme. Curie, the discoverer of radium, and has been in touch also with the work of the Radium Institute in London. The investigation is to be made under the supervision of the cancer commission of Harvard. Dr. E. E. Tyzzer, director of the commission, says that a group of investigators is being assembled to attack the problem of cancer treatment from various points of view.

CHATS WITH THINKING WOMEN by Barbara Boyd

The Impulse from the Distance

Do you know these words of Matthew Arnold, and do you not think them inspiring to dwell upon? "An impulse from the distance Of his deepest, best existence."

Haven't you often felt that impulse? Have you always obeyed it?

Alas! most of us must answer in the negative. And that is when we make our first swerve from the right path. We feel the impulse. We see the vision. But we do not obey. We fail to follow.

In days gone by, when we felt these impulses, when we caught for an instant the gleam, we doubted what we had received, what we had seen. We were apt to put such things aside as notions or fancies, without substance or reality.

But today science is probing into the unseen. And we are beginning to learn there is a world all about us, unknown to the physical senses, but nevertheless real and having its influence upon us. And it is from this realm our impulse comes; this is the realm of our deepest, best existence, the realm of our real self, that spirit self of ours that has nothing to do with flesh and blood and bone. And this spirit self is part of the spirit universe, the eternal verities of existence. And the impulse that comes from this source should be heeded.

But some will say, "I have an impulse to do wrong as well as right."

But does that impulse come from your best existence?

No one, unless he is mentally incapable, but can distinguish between right and wrong. And no one who sincerely wishes to distinguish but can tell which his impulse is from—the best in him or from the worst.

And it is this impulse from the deepest, best existence, we should heed. If we want to be led higher and higher into the realities and the joys or true living. For this existence is connected with the realities of the universe and the true joys of being, and this impulse is the voice of these speaking to our spiritual ear.

Poets are, in a way, seers and prophets, and when Matthew Arnold spoke of the deepest, best existence, he had, with spiritual sight, discerned the real man in each of us, of which the physical man is but the material manifestation. And it is this real man, this deepest, best existence, that we should listen to. And his voice is heard in every impulse for the good and true. For the real man in us can only speak of good and truth, of eternal things, for he is eternity.

And in the final count, only truth and good are lasting. For evil eventually destroys itself. But truth never does.

THAT TIRED FEELING

Suggests Grandmother's Remedy.

It's true, the season is here with its sudden changes, and the old idea that we need a blood medicine is not without reason. Too much heavy food has caused a torpid liver, sluggish blood, and a weak, tired out feeling.

Sulphur, cream of tartar and molasses was grandmother's remedy but that has long ago been displaced by Vinol, a combination of the two most world famed tonics, namely, the medicinal curative elements of the cods' liver without oil, and iron for the blood.

Vinol builds you up, makes you eat more and digest better, makes your blood rich and pure—puts healthy color in your cheeks.

P. O. Barker of Bowen's Mill, Ga., says: "When I was badly run down last spring I took Vinol in an effort to regain my health and strength and it did not disappoint me. It made me feel as well as ever."

We guarantee Vinol to satisfy you and refund your money if it does not. Frank D. Hall, druggist, Newark, Ohio.

MEMORIAL SERMON TO VETERANS

Plymouth Congregational Church
Crowded to Hear Dr. F. E. Holloway Deliver Patriotic Address Sunday.

In the midst of surroundings of flowers and Old Glory and with portraits of Grant, Lincoln, Washington and Sherman before them, veterans of the civil war and their auxiliary societies listened to an application of the patriotic principle to everyday life, when Dr. F. E. Holloway of the Plymouth Congregational church delivered the annual memorial sermon Sunday morning.

The church was crowded with visitors, and every pew was occupied up to the limit of reservations for the patriotic orders when they made their entrance.

Assembling in the forenoon at Memorial Auditorium, the G. A. R., N. V. L., members of the W. R. C., Sons of Veterans and Daughters of Veterans, headed by the veterans' drum corps and escorted by the Old Guard, Company B, marched to the church in a body, where pews had been reserved. Spanish war veterans also attended.

Dr. Holloway said in part: Mr. Holloway chose as his text, Proverbs 22, 22-23: "Rob not the poor, because he is poor: neither oppress the afflicted in the gate. For the Lord will plead their cause, and spoil the soul of those that spoil them."

On behalf of Plymouth congregation I greet you, our guests on this occasion—veterans of the Civil War, we hold you in reverence. To the Woman's Relief Corps, we present our most respectful salutations; we recognize the honor you have done us to be present. In war you have advanced the heroic page with the names of Florence Nightingale, of Dorothea Dix, of Eliza Potter, of Clara Barton, of Annice Wittenmeyer, of the Woolsey sisters, of Mary Livermore—these are among scores who have made illustrious the work of woman in the field and hospital. But just as noble have been those of your sex whose fathers, husbands, brothers and sons left all behind to respond to the trembling Nation's call for help. These women remained at home to keep up the farm, the shop, the store—to care for children: to weep alone and pray alone and suffer alone when night winds sang the requiem of death.

To the Sons of Veterans we offer welcome. Yours is a splendid ancestry; may yours be the glory of keeping their memories unsullied.

To the Spanish-American War Veterans, we pay our tribute of high respect. On the top and on the bottom of the planet your guns have rung forth a message of liberty for the captive. Your lives for "the other fellow"—what the veterans of the Civil War won and bequeathed to us, yours has been the privilege to share with the helpless peoples of the islands of the seas.

To the others of our guests, we extend a hearty welcome. The principles of civil and religious liberty you cherish, are those which brought the Pilgrim and Puritan and Huguenot to these hospitable shores. We unite with you in the prayer—

"Long may our land be bright
With freedom's holy light;
Protect us by Thy might,
Great God, our King."

My text is the pledge of the great God in behalf of the oppressed: "For the Lord will plead their cause and spoil the soul of those that spoil them."

It is fitting at this time to consider how God providentially used the Civil War to contribute certain valuable aids, benefits, reinforcements to the onward march of civil and religious liberty. I shall mention three of these contributions: First—the abolition of slavery; Second—vindication of the principle of popular sovereignty; and third—The quality of manhood the war wrought out for our emulation.

First—The Abolition of Slavery: The Civil War gave the death blow on the American continent to the doctrine that a man may have a property right in another man. It abolished human slavery as an institution to be sanctioned and protected by Anglo-Saxon, American civilization.

Farther back than the day when his brethren sold Joseph into Egypt, the Great Pyramid invited the wondering visitor to that ancient nation to take note of a monument to a king, who considered the sacrifice of a hundred thousand human lives a small price to pay for his erection.

This is but a small page in the ever-moving drama of antiquity. No man can estimate the misery, the cost in human life which the institutions and wonders of the buried past and living present have exacted. They flatter the power that called them into being; they, likewise, tell the tragic story of a slave.

But all things must come to an end except the laws of God. In the code of that regnant Ruler of us all, there is a law forbidding the maintenance of a nuisance. This law is universal in its application. It excludes nothing. It excludes nobody. Its execution is not always set into swift motion. Nevertheless, it is inexorable. The penalty is death. When Vattel wrote his Law of Nations, a hundred and fifty years ago, it had become an international crime to sell a prisoner of war into slavery. Vattel was a white man. Yet it remained for a yellow race, only eight years ago, to teach the white man how to treat a prisoner of war with intelligent magnanimity. One hundred and thirty years ago, the courts of England and Scotland held that no man, white, black or any other color, was the subject of property. Yet less than sixty years ago, Chief Justice Taney, speaking for a majority of the Supreme Court of the United States, used up 27,000 words to instruct us that, under the law of the land, Dred Scott, the negro slave, had no standing in a United States court to show that he was legally entitled to freedom. That decision drove the Anglo-Saxon of the new republic squarely into collision with God's unrevoked law forbidding nuisances.

Slavery was a nuisance. It was an obstruction to universal order. Suddenly, as though the volcanic depths of hell had upburst, tempestuous war swept down the rivers to the seas. The nation's nostrils were stifled with the sulphurous smoke of battle. Brother tore out the heart of brother. Limpid streams burst their banks into rivers of blood. Plowshares were melted into muskets and pruning hooks into bayonets. Wives were widowed, children orphaned, mothers bereft, homes desolated, sanctuaries profaned, school houses destroyed, communities depopulated—everywhere, through everything, the wild, shrieking flame of war flew with its crimson banner of devastation and death. A million men have paid the penalty, in some form, for that violation of God's law.

In vindication of the principle of popular sovereignty Mr. Holloway cited three illustrations: the suppression of the rebellion, the peaceful dissolution of the Union armies at the close of the war without exhibiting spectacles like Roman triumphs, and the failure of the impeachment proceedings against President Andrew Johnson.

Of the manhood wrought out by the Civil War referred to, those whose honors have been won in the ranks of peace after being chastened in the harsh discipline of war, mentioning, among others, "Private Joe Fifer, late governor of Illinois, McKinley, Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., of the United States Supreme Court, Chaplain McCabe, Bishop David H. Moore and Archbishop Ireland. The preacher also paid a high tribute to the valor and noble characters of Southern heroes, and closed with a eulogy of Lincoln and the prayer that there would be no missing ones of those present," when the roll is called up yonder."

Mrs. Ashton beautifully rendered "When This Cruel War Is Over," and the refrain of "Home Sweet Home," using the flute step on the big organ which gave all the effects of a flute solo. The music played as an interlude showed true artistic skill and was thoroughly enjoyed by the large congregation.

Here's Newark proof. Investigate it.

One of us suffered a good deal from kidney weakness and backache. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from A. F. Crayton & Co.'s Drug Store, brought great relief."

If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Dudgeon had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c. all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

CONFIDENCE

Merchants Spend Money to Gain It and Hold It

By HOLLAND.

YOUR confidence is an asset that every manufacturer of reputable goods seeks. He spends money to gain it and will take all necessary pains to retain it. Your confidence in the integrity of a manufacturer, your belief that goods bearing a certain brand are always up to standard, is one of the intangible assets known as "good will" and which is regarded by a business man as essential to his success.

Manufacturers spend millions telling you about their goods. They cannot hope to get this money back by the first transactions. They must make you a customer and keep you a customer. To do this they must make honest goods at an honest price.

This accounts for the fact that advertised goods are always of high class. It would not pay to advertise goods that will not bear rigid test. The

ADVERTISING CREATES CONFIDENCE.

Then the manufacturer depends on the quality of his product to still further advertise it and still further increase the customer's confidence.

S. S. CONVENTION SUCCESSFUL IN EVERY RESPECT

One of the most successful conventions ever held by the Sunday schools of Licking county was concluded Saturday afternoon at the First M. E. church.

On the various programs have been a number of talented speakers, who have a message to convey and they convey it in the most attractive and interesting way.

Following Dr. Hamill's address on "Formation vs. Reformation," the award service was made to the various grades of Sunday schools of the county.

In the Fifth Street Baptist church on Saturday afternoon two extra sessions were held. One for the girls who were addressed by Miss Edna Earle Cole and a boys' meeting which was led by M. G. Bailey, assistant secretary of the Ohio Sunday School Convention of Columbus, O.

The resolutions committee was called upon again to make its reports and the following resolutions were submitted and acted upon by the convention:

Resolutions.

Surely the smile of God has been upon us during the year and we have been abundantly rewarded for our labor and faithfulness. We have seen the kingdom extended and men and women coming to the Christ in such numbers as has not been known since the days of Pentecost and that day of great revivals. Whole neighborhoods have been brought into the fold of the church and the righteousness of Jesus Christ and of the Kingdom of God is everywhere around us commanding the minds and the hearts of men. Can it be anything but the harvest we are reaping for the faithfulness of the church and Bible school hosts? It means we have broken up the fallow ground around each parish and, sowing the seed of the gospel of truth and cultivating the product of its growth.

Our hearts are glad as we note the progress the Kingdom of Christ and we come up to the convention this year with thanksgiving and praise for God who has led us on to victory.

So many persons and instructors have contributed to the success of our convention, that we desire to more formally express our appreciation, by resolving,

First—That we record appreciation for the way in which the county executive committee has brought forward work and planned this convention and brought to our county a strong corps of instructors and specialists in their line of work. We believe we have never had a stronger program. To each of these instructors we desire to extend a word of thanks.

Second—That we extend to those who provided the convention with such excellent music, and note especially, Mr. Kainer and the presence of the orchestra.

Third—That we heartily appreciate the generosity of the trustees of the First M. E. church in opening up their great building for the sessions of the convention, and gratefully acknowledge the kindness of the trustees of the Fifth Street Baptist church for their kindness in providing accommodations for the boys' and girls' meetings in their church.

Fourth—That we extend a very heartfelt appreciation to Miss Clarice Carroll, our county secretary, who has so efficiently served the association during the last three years, and sincerely regret that she feels compelled to discontinue her work without disparagement to others at this time. With one accord we give to her the credit of having brought our association up to its present high standard.

Fifth—That we desire to mention the help the Bliss college has rendered in assisting, free of charge, the committee in getting out circular letters, addressing communications, etc.

Sixth—Appreciative of the potent and far reaching influence of the press, we desire to express our warm thanks to our newspapers for the support they have given, in making our work through the year and the convention a success, by the liberal space they have given to our announcement and in advertising the convention, and for the full reports given of the sessions of the same. We most heartily commend for their every effort in which they join in lifting the standard of life and conditions in the community and county.

Seventh—That we are more and more convinced that temperance and the American saloon is one of the most deadly foes of the Sunday school work, and because of this, we most heartily endorse the increased attention the State and National Sunday School Committees are giving to the solution of this problem, by introducing more thorough and systematic methods of instructions into the Sunday school work.

We desire to commend the arrangement for the Anti-Alcohol Convention to be held in this city June 11 and 12, and urge all the Sunday schools of the county to bring it to the notice of their communities and help to secure just as large attendance as possible upon it. We believe it will mark new enthusiasm in temperance instruction in the Sunday school and deepen the temperance sentiment in the county.

It is with great appreciation that we refer to the high stand the National administration has taken upon great moral questions, and note with pride that Secretary of State Bryan has refused to serve fermented wines at his public dinners.

Respectfully signed:

Jonathan Wild, Founder of the "Thief Trust"

JONATHAN WILD was a thief who never stole a business man with no legitimate business, a scoundrel who helped the law, and a man of the law who helped scoundrels. He was founder of one of the queerest monopolies on record—a "Thief Trust."

Wild was born in 1682. He was a Birmingham buckle-maker by trade and came to London as a young man to improve his fortunes. A life of dissipation quickly landed him in prison for debt. There he stayed four years, becoming acquainted with almost every thief in London and gaining a strong influence over most of them. By the time he had scraped together enough money to buy his freedom he had already outlined his future career. He saw that crooks never really succeed in life. So he decided to stay "technically" honest, and to profit by others' crimes. Renting a low waterside tavern, he made friends with more outcasts and at last had a large enough following to take up the profession he had planned.

Calling to him a number of notorious thieves, Wild made them a little speech. He explained that the new laws had made life hard for robbers. Theft was not only a "hanging offense," but the receivers of stolen goods were so closely watched that they dared not do business. So he suggested an improvement on the old methods. Any one committing a theft was to come at once to Wild and tell all about it. Wild in turn was to get to the person robbed, and, on the latter's promise to ask no questions, was to offer to return the stolen articles—in payment of a substantial reward. This reward he would give to the thief in exchange for the plunder, keeping one-third of the money as his own commission.

It was a simple arrangement. The victim would get back his property by paying a certain sum; the thieves would make more money than by dealing with regular "receivers" or "fences." Wild, with no danger to himself, would reap a tidy commission on every robbery.

From the first his business prospered. He himself stole nothing, nor did he in any way come within reach of the law. A house, for instance, would be robbed of $2,000 worth of valuables. Wild would go to the owner and tell him that for $800 he would find the lost goods. The money was paid and the goods were returned. Wild clearing $200 on the deal. The work was profitable to him and to the thieves alike. By the word at large he was regarded as a shrewd detective, who was singularly fortunate in tracing lost property. Most people were glad enough to get back their belongings without insisting on the thief's arrest. Wild grew rich, bought a big house and was highly respected. He even added smuggling as a "side line" to his business.

He managed to get thieves wholly in his power by hunting up evidence which (should he place it in the hands of the law) would hang them. By holding this threat over their heads, Wild made the great army of crooks give him slavish obedience and deal exclusively with him. It was a regular "Trust." Once in awhile some stubborn rogue would disobey an order or would refuse to dispose of his booty through the trust's agency. Then Wild, as a reputable citizen, would lay his evidence before the police and would help personally in the capture. Sometimes these arrested slaves of his would turn on him. His body, in fact, was covered with wounds, and in one tussle his skull was fractured. But these cases of rebellion were uncommon.

Robbery thrives as never before. At last parliament was forced to pass a law making it a felony for any one to take money on pretense of restoring stolen goods unless he should also produce the thief. Wild was rich enough to have retired, but the spirit of graft was too strong for him. Hitherto he had been on the right side of the law. Now he found himself on the wrong side of it. He continued to wring thieves' ill-earned money from them and to betray such as failed to follow his orders. At last, in 1725, he was arrested, tried, convicted and sentenced to be hanged.

As the hangman's cart bore him to Tyburn (London's place of execution) the crowd mobbed him, yelling "Judas!" and stoning the trembling old rascal, leaving little work for the executioner to do when the cart at last reached Tyburn.

Almost an Atheist.

Byles—Did you ever come across a more cancelled fellow than Bulger? They say he is an atheist, and I believe he is.

Bonter—I wouldn't like to go as far as that; but I do know that he doesn't recognize the existence of a superior being.

Even when two hearts beat as one they sometimes make a discord.

Vexed Question Viewed From New Angle By Pastor Russell

PASTOR RUSSELL

Washington, D. C., May 25.—Pastor Russell, addressing the Washington Temple Congregation, made some statements which seemed startling and yet reasonable. His arguments quite upset some popular theories, yet seem so rational as to be convincing. His text was, "He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth."—Psalm 46:9, 10.

The Pastor declared that no one could be more averse to war, on general principles, than himself. He declared himself an extremist in his sentiment for peace. Yet he could not close his eyes to the facts of history—that practically every blessing has come to the world through war, at the cost of cruel bloodshed. Where would America be today had there been no War of Independence? Where would the nations of Europe be today if they had not fought to maintain their national liberties? Where would a refusal to fight land every nation in less than a year?

There is no conflict between this particular and common-sense view of the matter and the teachings of our Master, said the Pastor. Our Master was not addressing nations, but individuals, when He directed that he who is smitten on the one cheek should turn the other, and be non-resistant. The instructions of Jesus were wholly and solely intended for His disciples, His followers. And they were instructed that they should come out from the world and be separate—a new nation, a holy nation. They were to expect to suffer persecution, even as did their Teacher. They had His personal promise that if they would thus suffer with Him for righteousness' sake, their reward would be by and by in the Kingdom—then they should sit with Him in His Throne.

Jesus gave His followers no assurance that a peace policy would be successful and bring them earthly prosperity. Quite to the contrary, the Scriptures declare that whosoever will live godly shall suffer persecution—yes, must expect to endure persecution. In order to thereby have his loyalty to God demonstrated prior to his acceptance to the Throne of his Redeemer. "If any man will be My disciple, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow Me."—Matthew 16:24.

The Beatitudes Not For Nations. When Jesus said, "Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God." He was not addressing nations, but individuals—a special class of individuals—those who would become His disciples by a full renunciation of all earthly interests. The Redeemer's declaration respecting nations was the very reverse of His statement respecting His followers. He declared, "Nation shall rise against nation," and there shall be wars.—Matthew 24:6, 7.

I fear that I shall be misunderstood, said the Pastor, but there is so much confusion upon the subject that the Truth needs to be stated plainly. And I know of no place more appropriate for its statement than in this capital of the most peace-loving nation on earth—next to China.

The truth is that war is not the disease, but merely a symptom of the disease in the body politic and in the affairs of earth. So long as the disease continues, its outward manifestation, war, is bound to continue. Need I say to you that the disease to which I refer is sin? Sin and war are inseparable. There would be only two ways of inhibiting war:

(1) By converting the world of nations from a condition of hardness of heart, selfishness, sin, to a condition of righteousness, tenderness of heart, generosity; or

(2) By the establishment of a government, or power not swayed by sin, to supervise, overrule and control the affairs of the sinners by superior strength. Is this proposition debatable? asked the Pastor. He answered that it is not. Its basic facts are, he claimed, as sure as mathematics, as certain as that two and two make four. He cited various Scriptures corroborating this, his position, and showing that sin, selfishness, is continually on the warpath, either politically, socially or financially.

The battle, he declared, has been going on ever since man became a sinner. At one time this selfishness manifested itself in law-breaking, piracy, slavery. At another time policy changed and the leaders of men perceived that they could accomplish more by milder methods, along the lines of politics and ecclesiasticism. Again conditions changed, and the wise perceived that with the coming of mechanical inventions into the world's affairs human slavery would be unprofitable, and that more could be accomplished with less responsibility by setting the slaves free, and making them work for their own living in competition with machinery.

Next came the era of financial combination, giant trusts and corporations controlling the destinies of the human family, from peasant to king. But with all these changes, war has gone on. It has merely changed its form, merely changed its weapons, merely changed its methods. The basis of all these wars is selfishness, and so long as selfishness continues, war will continue. Success will mean prosperity. Failure will mean oppression.

Various Kinds of War. You see that I am not limiting warfare to naval engagements, nor to battles fought with guns and swords and charging steeds. I am including in the great warfare all the social, political and financial disturbances and conflicts. They are all battles in which the shrewder minds, as a rule, conquer. And now instead of earth's war being ended, we see new conflicts begun from new quarters. LABOR, having organized, is developing strength more and more each day. It is professedly training for a great conflict or battle. The battle is on, and it already has won some victories, and declares that its warfare against oppressors of every kind is only commencing.

The dull and stupid and ignorant of a century ago, by free schools and educational advantages, have become keen-eyed and keen-witted, and alert to grasp every possible advantage. Moreover, for a quarter of a century our great colleges have been undermining faith in the inspiration of the Bible, and their influence has extended finally to the masses. These are now declaring their doubts respecting a future life, and their determination that they will grasp at the earliest possible moment the opportunities of the present life, that they may share in the luxuries of the rich and make them common to all. If their program be half carried out, it means the most dreadful war ever known in the world's history. The Bible describes it as "a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation."—Daniel 12:1.

Since the spirit of war is the spirit of selfishness in action, it corroborates the thought that the world was never more strifeful than at present, never more on the alert for self-gratification; and although enjoying blessings beyond the dreams of any other day, discontent is more general than ever before and is goading mankind onward with increasing speed to the greatest of all conflicts.

So long as money has its value and political combinations can hold control, the social structure will remain intact and exercise itself, nation against nation, through fleets and armies. But as soon as the political and financial powers begin to crumble, the warfare will become anarchy, which the Scriptures describe as "every man's hand against his neighbor."

What Is the Remedy?

Pastor Russell declared that the leading minds of the world clearly recognize the matter as he has presented it. Only a smile of sympathetic pity greets the proposal of well-intentioned peace men, such as Andrew Carnegie. Not generally have inheritance taxes and income taxes been legalized by those who will suffer by their requirements. Not of good-will, but of necessity, have many of the reforms of our day. They are concessions wisely made. They will doubtless be followed by still greater concessions, which also will be wise; yet all the concessions that can be made will not satisfy the appetite of the growing discontent. Each concession of the favored classes to the masses is like throwing food to a pursuing pack of hungry wolves. They stop to devour the advantage, but have their appetites thereby whetted for more.

Man's only remedy is now too late. A complete turning of the hearts of men to God was much more nearly possible fifty years ago, when there was greater faith in the Bible, greater faith in an Almighty Creator. The Higher Critics have done their work well, destroying faith in the only Book for which Divine inspiration can be claimed. Education has done its part and commercialism its part, until the world is on fire with selfish ambition—desire for riches and luxuries—being desirous of obtaining them without cost to themselves.

The Christian's Glorious Hope. The picture I am painting you, dear friends, would only harrow you and not be worth while, had I not a good Message of encouragement to give in offset, said the Pastor. He then proceeded to explain that God had foreknown the course of evil for the Six Great Days of earth's history—six thousand years—and had prepared for the Great Seventh Day, which will also be a thousand years long. He described it as the Day, or Epoch, in which Messiah upon the Throne will make all things new.

The Pastor quoted freely from the Scriptures respecting the evidences of the night of sorrow and sin and strife, and the dawning of the new Day, in which righteousness will be enforced throughout the earth, not only by the word of the King, but by the Divine Power of His Kingdom. The words of the Prophets were quoted, describing Messiah's Kingdom as the "desire of all nations."

The Pastor explained that other Scriptures show that the time of trouble now looming up as a cloud before mankind will be such a terrible storm of strife, bloodshed, trouble, that the world will have its fill and be nauseated. Therefore, under the guidance of the spirit of a sound mind will gradually come to mankind as a whole, and proportionately they will turn to Messiah's Kingdom in loyal obedience, declaring, as says the Prophet, "Lo, this is our God; we have waited for Him, and He will save us." (Isaiah 25:9.) Rich and poor of every nation will gradually be made aware of the changed conditions, and all lovers of righteousness will rejoice together.

So, then, dear friends, let us not be discouraged if the wars between nations continue or increase, if the strife—political, social, religious and financial—shall rage as never before. Let us think it not strange, but remember that all these are the motions and outworkings of the fallen human heart. The Bible intimates that God is about to give mankind an object lesson respecting the influence of selfishness—a lesson which they will never forget, and which will prove valuable to all eternity.

"Blessed Are the Peacemakers."

Pastor Russell declared that what he had said should in no way encourage anybody toward selfishness and strife, but to the contrary. For those who can learn by instruction God's Word is provided. He who closely follows the instruction of the Scriptures will receive a proportionate blessing. While the Bible is specially addressed to the few, the consecrated, who are the real peacemakers meant by Jesus when He declared, "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God," nevertheless in proportion as others recognize the right principle—the principle of justice and mercy, sympathy and compassion—they will proportionately be in harmony with the great King, and proportionately shield themselves from a measure of the trouble of the great Day of Wrath, drawing on.

The Pastor had only kind words for Mr. Carnegie and his fellows of the Peace Society. He merely forewarned that their well-meant plans could never carry out; for God is not favorable for peace at the present time and under present conditions. "There is no peace, saith the Lord, unto the wicked."—Isaiah 48:22.

This word wicked, said the Pastor, includes broadly the entire human family; for "there is none righteous, no, not one." Only a comparatively small number have ceased to be wicked, from the Scriptural standpoint. The only ones justified in God's sight are those who have gone the full length of the surrender of their hearts to the Redeemer. These, the Scriptures declare have escaped the condemnation that is on the world. These were once "children of wrath," even as all the others are children of wrath.

But alas, the number who have come fully into the family of God is indeed small. Not many have made a full surrender to the Lord. Not many have received Jesus as not only their Teacher, but their Redeemer and Exemplar. The majority, as the Apostle said, are still bound by the Wicked One—still blinded, still deaf to considerable mea-

APPLICANTS FOR GETTYSBURG TRIP

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Columbus, May 26.—Adjutant General Wood has announced that all applications of survivors of the battle of Gettysburg for free state transportation to the re-union of veterans which will be held at Gettysburg on July 1, 2 and 3, must be in his office not later than June 1. This made necessary, he said, because military officials at Washington must know by that date how many will attend the re-union. Some 400 applications already have been received from Ohio survivors.

Newark, O., May 19, 1913.

ENTRIES FOR THE WASHINGTON TRIPS CLOSE THIS WEEK

Number of Licking County Boys Have Entered Contest—Meeting of Licking County Crop Improvement Society.

With nine entries already listed in the corn growing contest, the Licking County Crop Improvement society is about to declare the entries closed. Applications that are not in during this week will not get consideration, it is announced.

Advance methods of agriculture and the science of getting the soil back to its primitive state was the subject chosen by J. B. Tharp of near Millersport, in addressing the Licking County Crop Improvement society's meeting Saturday afternoon. Mr. Tharp has had great success with the use of lime fertilizer as a means of regenerating farming land that has seemingly lost its vigor for production. His plan would inoculate the soil with the nitrogen and lime excretions with a season's application.

For the youths who may seek immediate results for their single acre's corn production, Mr. Tharp suggests application of burnt lime.

Byron Hoover, a successful Perry township farmer, also spoke in a general way on the development of new life in apparently dead soil.

The meeting, which had been set ostensibly to discuss ways and means of creating the proper spirit of interest in the corn growing contest now in progress in the county and state, developed into a discussion of the best methods of developing and tilling the soil, and it is not unlikely that later there will be regular meetings arranged and experts invited to address them on scientific agriculture.

Secretary Metz reported that ten contestants are known to be working for the eight free trips offered in Licking county. Names of several of these have not been received here.

The contest appears to be centered in the vicinity of Union township, it is said, while Monroe is expected to develop three contestants.

County Recorder J. M. Farmer, president of the society, has received an invitation to visit the celebrated Wing alfalfa farm near Mechanicsburg, O., next Wednesday, where the "father of alfalfa" and experts from the Wooster experimental station and elsewhere will gather to give talks and view the farm. It is said the Wing farm is a wonderful example of science applied to farming.

The Licking County Crop Improvement society probably will meet the latter part of this week or early next week at the call of the president, and it is hoped at an early meeting to have present all of the boys who are contesting for the Washington trips, that they may meet, become acquainted and create a closer spirit of friendly rivalry.

Among those who have entered the contest from this county are the following:

YOUTH TOO YOUNG AND CLERK REFUSES MARRIAGE LICENSE

All the way from Columbus to get a marriage license and nothing stirring! That was the experience of James E. Billingsley, whose occupation is given as a clerk, and who appeared to have a perfect willingness to wed Miss Goldie May Miller, 20, of Newark.

Billingsley and Miss Miller sought a marriage permit from the Probate Court shortly before the closing hour Saturday. The record was partly completed when it developed that the bridegroom-to-be was only 18 years of age. In the absence of parental consent, the license was withheld. The young man's father, Morris C. Billingsley, was not within reach, so the couple postponed their wedding festivities pending parental approval.

WILL CONTINUE TO WIND CLOCK IN PROBATE COURT

There's one part of his duty as probation officer of the Licking county juvenile court that Police Chief James Sheridan can't get out of by his acceptance of the re-appointment to the head of the police department and that's winding the office clock every Monday morning.

During all of his time as probation officer, Sheridan's regular Monday morning task was to wind the eight-day clock that hangs on the east wall of the outer office of probate court. Monday morning when he dropped in to say goodbye to Judge Hunter and the clerks with whom he has served, he was told that nobody around the office was tall enough and agile enough to mount the folding step ladder and successfully wind the office clock.

So he promptly performed the duty and promised to keep at it regularly if his successor couldn't be induced to keep the timepiece going.

DAYTON RAISES OVER $2,000,000 FOR FLOOD PREVENTION

(Associated Press Telegram)

Dayton, O., May 26.—The city of Dayton has accomplished the seemingly impossible. A fund of over $2,000,000 for flood prevention purposes has been raised in the stricken city within one week's time, and the contributors include capitalists, laborers and school children in gifts proportioned to their ability to give.

A committee of team captains numbering twenty-five citizens, each with a dozen or more helpers, scoured the city for funds, and the last penny of the amount sought was rung up on a giant cash register Sunday night. John H. Patterson of the National Cash Register company, who has done so much toward relieving the flood suffering in Dayton, personally gave $50,000; his son gave $6,500 and his daughter, $4,000. The Cash Register company gave two subscriptions of $250,000 each. The committee had for its slogan: "Do it for the love of Dayton."
